Push up's at work are a challenge in work attire, needless to say we put our heads (feet) together and came up with a creative option that worked for all.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Take the Stairs instead of the elevator. Meredith Curry, Janice McConnell and Donna Buxton opt to take the stairs.

Challenge your supervisor to a push-up contest. Janice McConnell challenges her supervisor Meredith Curry to a push-up competition. Janice won when Meredith fell to the floor.

Do bicep curls with office supplies. Patricia Parrish loves doing bicep curls with her stapler and tape dispenser.

Take a brain break during the work day. Michelle Jacobsen and Meredith Curry are clearing their minds by doing Yoga. This is called the Tree Pose.

Create your own fun activity and take a picture. Donna Buxton and Janice McConnell show us how easy it is to do wall-sits.

- Dawn said: Take a physical activity break during a meeting. Taking a small break to stretch during a staff meeting allows those who participate to interact with one another and was a nice change. Small “energy/stretch” breaks allow a person to refocus on the meeting agenda. I don’t think they should be done in every meeting but this was a nice change. Thank you for the challenge, this allowed our group to spend a little more time getting to know one another.
- Stacy said; Well I have thought that all of the activities have been a blast. I will have to say that the Cupid Shuffle was my favorite only because we have some people in our group that have never done a line dance before and they even joined in. It is truly amazing at the participation you get with exercising when you don’t call it exercising and that it’s just a fun/break activity. It also nice to do fun activities with co-workers and forget about your job for a few minutes.
- Lisa said: I really enjoyed all the activities, if you are familiar with the personally colors. I think everyone should take a little time to be ORANGE. I got to know my co-workers on a more personal basis.
- Patricia said: My favorite activity was throwing the ball around outside. The overall experience was a good one. We were able to enjoy doing a variety of activities with our coworkers outside of the normal office stuff. I learned a new dance, which I will be able to use outside of work. The short interlude during our monthly meeting was a nice brain break, giving us time to stretch and not think about work the whole time. I enjoyed all of the activities and hope to participate in more worksite wellness activities in the future
- Amanda said: I really enjoyed the whole experience! The camaraderie of our group is great and it really brought our team together. I think I enjoyed tossing the ball in the parking lot the most, though. We laughed and talked about the whole scavenger hunt. We shared thoughts and played. This whole activity was a benefit to our team because we saw different aspects of one another. As the newest member to this division, I felt like I was really accepted and learned a great deal about each person who participated. I had a wonderful adventure with my co-workers!!
